Department of Aerospace Engineering

Request for Change of Advisor

All AE graduate students are expected to work with their faculty advisor(s) to develop an appropriate plan of study for their degree program and their academic and research interests. Students are expected to meet regularly with their advisor(s) during office hours or on advising days to select classes each semester and revise their plan of study as needed. All students must submit an online plan of study before their second semester in order to have their online enrollment hold released.

All new graduate students will be advised by the AE graduate committee unless you are already working with a faculty member your first semester. Master of Engineering students will be advised by the graduate committee.

The assignment of temporary faculty advisors to new graduate students is literally intended to be temporary. If you intend to do a thesis or, once you become acquainted with faculty in your area of interest, you are encouraged to choose a permanent faculty advisor as soon as practical and meet with them during office hours to develop your plan of study and select courses to support your research.
